

Holly Lewis

Presenter / Reporter

Holly always wanted to work in TV News. Even when she was at school she would spend her holidays at the BBC in Bristol doing work experience, making the tea and trying to learn as much as possible from the reporters.

After reading History at Oxford University she did a vocational journalism course which led to a placement at Plymouth Sound Radio. Here she covered many different stories and was hooked on the variety and unpredictability of news. Holly then moved to Westcountry Television where she became a news reader, getting up at half past three in the morning to read the GMTV bulletins.

A need for more sleep led Holly to Meridian TV in Southampton where she learnt her trade as a TV News reporter. Holly is one of the most recognisable faces of regional TV news in the South East. She regularly presented Meridian Tonight and has covered the full range of stories from major news events like The Tonbridge Robbery to having a go on a freefall simulator for the 'and finally'.

As well as an accomplished presenter and reporter Holly is also an award winning documentary maker. It's the challenge of presenting a story to maximum effect that she enjoys most. She is delighted to be working with Mediawise to bring some of the fun and excitement of working in television news into the classroom.
